East Dunbartonshire Council Complaints Handling Procedure

Updated September, 2017

East Dunbartonshire Council - Complaints Handling Procedure

Foreword

Our complaints handling procedure (CHP) reflects East Dunbartonshire Council's commitment to valuing complaints. It seeks to resolve customer dissatisfaction as close as possible to the point of service delivery and to conduct thorough, impartial and fair investigations of customer complaints so that, where appropriate, we can make evidence-based decisions on the facts of the case.

The procedure has been developed by local government complaints handling experts working closely with the Scottish Public Services Ombudsman (SPSO). We have tried to produce a standard approach to handling complaints across local government, which complies with the SPSO's guidance on a model complaints handling procedure. This procedure aims to help us 'get it right first time'. We want quicker, simpler and more streamlined complaints handling with local, early resolution by capable, well-trained employees.

Complaints give us valuable information we can use to improve customer satisfaction. Our complaints handling procedure will enable us to address a customer's dissatisfaction and may also prevent the same problems that led to the complaint from happening again. For our employees, complaints provide a first-hand account of the customer's views and experience, and can highlight problems we may otherwise miss. Handled well, complaints can give our customers a form of redress when things go wrong, and can also help us continuously improve our services.

Resolving complaints early saves money and creates better customer relations. Sorting them out as close to the point of service delivery as possible means we can deal with them locally and quickly, so they are less likely to escalate to the next stage of the procedure. Complaints that we do not resolve swiftly can greatly add to our workload.

The complaints handling procedure will help us do our job better, improve relationships with our customers and enhance public perception of the Council. It will help us keep the user at the heart of the process, while enabling us to better understand how to improve our services by learning from complaints.

How to use this procedure

This document explains to employees how to handle complaints. Our customer facing document and customer complaint form provides information for customers on the complaints procedure. Together, these form our complaints handling procedure.

This document contains references and links to more details on parts of the procedure, such as how to record complaints, and the criteria for signing off and agreeing time extensions. These explain how to process, manage and reach decisions on different types of complaints.

When using this document, you can also refer to the 'SPSO Statement of Complaints Handling Principles' and best practice guidance on complaints handling from the Complaints Standards Authority at the SPSO.

What is a complaint?

East Dunbartonshire Council's definition of a complaint is:

'An expression of dissatisfaction by one or more members of the public about the Council's action or lack of action, or about the standard of service provided by or on behalf of the Council.'

A complaint may relate to:

- failure to provide a service
- inadequate standard of service
- dissatisfaction with Council policy
- treatment by or attitude of an employee
- disagreement with a decision where the customer cannot use another procedure (for example an appeal) to resolve the matter
- the Council's failure to follow the appropriate administrative process.

This list does not cover everything.

Appendix 1 provides a range of examples of complaints we may receive, and how these may be handled.

A complaint is not:

- a routine first-time request for a service
- a request for compensation only
- issues that are in court or have already been heard by a court or a tribunal
- disagreement with a decision where a statutory right of appeal exists, for example in relation to Council tax or planning
- an attempt to reopen a previously concluded complaint or to have a complaint reconsidered where we have already given our final decision.

You must not treat these issues as complaints, and should instead direct customers to use the appropriate procedures.

Appendix 2 gives more examples of 'what is not a complaint' and how to direct customers appropriately.

Handling anonymous complaints

We value all complaints. This means we treat all complaints including anonymous complaints seriously and will take action to consider them further, wherever this is appropriate. Generally, we will consider anonymous complaints if there is enough information in the complaint to enable us to make further enquiries. If, however, an anonymous complaint does not provide enough information to enable us to take further action, we may decide not to pursue it further. Any decision not to pursue an anonymous complaint must be authorised by a senior manager.

If an anonymous complaint makes serious allegations, we will refer it to a senior officer immediately.

If we pursue an anonymous complaint further, we will record the issues as an anonymous complaint on the Customer Relationship Management system (CRM). This will help to ensure the completeness of the complaints data we record and allow us to take corrective action where appropriate.

What if the customer does not want to complain?

If a customer has expressed dissatisfaction in line with our definition of a complaint but does not want to complain, tell them that we do consider all expressions of dissatisfaction, and that complaints offer us the opportunity to improve services where things have gone wrong. Encourage the customer to submit a formal complaint and allow us to deal with it through the complaints handling procedure. This will ensure that the customer is updated on the action taken and gets a response to their complaint.

If, however, the customer insists they do not wish to complain, record the issue as an anonymous complaint. This will ensure that the customer's details are not recorded on the CRM and that they receive no further contact about the matter. It will also help to ensure the completeness of the complaints data recorded and will still allow us to fully consider the matter and take corrective action where appropriate.

Please refer to the example in Appendix 1 for further guidance.

Who can make a complaint?

Anyone who receives, requests or is affected by our services can make a complaint. Sometimes a customer may be unable or reluctant to make a complaint on their own. We will accept complaints brought by third parties as long as the customer has given their personal consent.

Complaints involving more than one service or organisation

If a complaint relates to the actions of two or more Council services, the Customer Excellence Team (CET) will coordinate with all services involved and take the lead in dealing with the complaint. They will explain to the customer that only one response covering all issues raised will be sent.

If a customer complains to the Council about the service of another agency or public service provider, but the Council has no involvement in the issue, the customer should be advised to contact the appropriate organisation directly. However, where, a complaint relates to a Council service and the service of another agency or public service provider, (for example a housing association or a government department), and the Council has a direct interest in the issue, you must handle the complaint about the Council through the CHP. If we need to make enquiries to an outside agency in relation to the complaint always take account of data protection legislation and our guidance on handling our customer's personal information. The Information Commissioner has detailed guidance on data sharing and has issued a data sharing code of practice.

Such complaints may include:

- a complaint made to us about a claim for housing benefit where the customer's dissatisfaction relates to the service we have provided and the service the DWP has provided
- a complaint made to us about antisocial behaviour where the customer's dissatisfaction relates to the service we have provided and the service the housing association has provided.

Social Work complaints

The legislation and guidance in relation to Social Work complaints changed in April, 2017. There is now a separate Social Work Complaints Handling Procedure which is available to view on the Health and Social Care section of East Dunbartonshire Council's website.

Care complaints

Local authorities that provide care services must be registered with the Care Inspectorate. Anyone receiving care services from us has the right to complain either direct to the Care Inspectorate or to us.

Customers may also receive care or support from other agencies under a contract with us. They may direct complaints about these services either to us (just like complaints about any Council service) or directly to the Care Inspectorate.

The Care Inspectorate's contact details can be found on their website:

The complaints handling process

Our complaints handling procedure aims to provide a quick, simple and streamlined process for resolving complaints early and locally by capable, well-trained employees.

Our complaints process provides two opportunities to resolve complaints internally:

- Stage 1: Frontline Resolution
 - Stage 2: Investigation

Any employee may deal with complaints from customers. These are usually complaints which can be resolved immediately. If the customer remains dissatisfied, they should be advised to submit a formal complaint. These complaints should be forwarded to the Customer Excellence Team (CET).

For clarity, the SPSO term 'frontline resolution' refers to the first stage of the complaints process. It does not reflect any job description within East Dunbartonshire Council but means seeking to resolve complaints at an early stage.

Stage one: Frontline Resolution

Frontline resolution aims to quickly resolve straightforward customer complaints that require little or no investigation. The main principle is to seek early resolution, resolving complaints at the earliest opportunity.

Appendix 1 gives examples of the types of complaint we may consider at this stage, with suggestions on how to resolve them.

A customer can make a complaint in writing, in person, by telephone, by email or online, or by having someone complain on their behalf. You must forward all formal complaints, regardless of how you have received them to the Customer Excellence Team (CET).

Services should no longer have in place their own systems for recording complaints whether manual, spreadsheets or databases. All complaints must now be recorded centrally on the CRM system which will be used to track progress of a complaint and produce management information.

What to do when you receive a complaint

- 1 On receiving a complaint, you must first decide whether the issue can indeed be defined as a complaint. The customer may also express dissatisfaction about more than one issue. This may mean you treat one element as a complaint, while directing the customer to pursue another element through an alternative route (see Appendix 2).
- 2 If you have received and identified a complaint, forward the details on to the Customer Excellence Team (CET) by completing the online form <https://www.eastdunbarton.gov.uk/webform/customer-complaints>
- 3 Investigate complaints and provide updates to CET when requested.
- 4 Liaise with the CET who will record and update cases on the CRM.
- 5 All complaints communication should be sent to the CET for review and agreement.
- 6 All customer responses will be sent out by CET.

What exactly is the customer's complaint (or complaints)?

It is important to be clear about exactly what the customer is complaining of. You may need to ask the customer for more information and probe further to get a full picture.

What does the customer want to achieve by complaining?

At the outset, clarify the outcome the customer wants. Of course, the customer may not be clear about this, and you may need to probe further to find out what they expect, and whether they can be satisfied.

Can I achieve this, or explain why not?

If you can achieve the expected outcome by providing an on-the-spot apology or explain why you cannot achieve it, you should do so. If you consider an apology is appropriate, you may be able to resolve the customer's complaint at the first point of contact.

The customer may expect more than we can provide. If so, you must tell them as soon as possible. An example would be where the customer is so dissatisfied with a kitchen refurbishment that they demand a new kitchen, but we are only willing to repair any broken units.

The Customer Excellence Team will act as a single point of contact for customers. All responses to customer complaints will be reviewed by the CET to ensure consistency and compliance with Ombudsman recommendations.

If I can't resolve this, who can help with frontline resolution?

If you cannot deal with the complaint because, for example, you are unfamiliar with the issues or area of service involved, pass details of the complaint to the CET.

Timelines

Stage 1 complaints must be completed within five working days, although in practice we would often expect to resolve the complaint much sooner.

The CET may need to get information from other services to resolve the complaint at this stage. However, it is important to respond to the customer within five working days, either resolving the matter or explaining that their complaint is to be investigated.

Extension to the timeline

In exceptional circumstances, where there are clear and justifiable reasons for doing so, we may agree an extension of no more than five working days with the customer. This must only happen when an extension will make it more likely that the complaint will be resolved at the frontline resolution stage.

To consider an extension, you must get agreement from the CET. They will help you decide whether an extension is necessary to effectively resolve the complaint. Examples of when this may be appropriate include employees or contractors being temporarily unavailable. If, however, the issues are so complex that they cannot be resolved in five days, it may be more appropriate to escalate the complaint straight to the investigation stage. The CET will inform the customer about the reasons for the delay, and when they can expect a response.

If the customer does not agree to an extension but it is unavoidable and reasonable, a senior manager must decide on the extension. The CET will then tell the customer about the delay and explain the reason for the decision to grant the extension.

It is important that such extensions do not become the norm. Rather, the timeline at stage 1 should be extended only rarely. All attempts to resolve the complaint at this stage must take no longer than ten working days from the date you receive the complaint.

The proportion of complaints that exceed the five-day limit will be evident from reported statistics. These statistics will be presented to our Corporate Management Team on a quarterly basis.

Closing the complaint at stage 1

The CET will inform the customer of the outcome to their complaint. They are not obliged to write to the customer, although they may choose to do so. Services investigating the complaint must ensure that the response to the complaint addresses all areas. The CET will review and agree all correspondence and ensure that we explain the reasons for our decision. It is also important to update the CET regularly to maintain a full and accurate record of any decisions reached. The content of all verbal or written communication with the customer must be recorded in the CRM case file prior to closing the case.

When to escalate to the investigation stage

A complaint must be escalated to the investigation stage when:

- Stage 1 complaint process was tried but the customer remains dissatisfied and requests an investigation into the complaint. This may be immediately on communicating the decision at stage 1 or could be some time later
 - the issues raised are complex and require detailed investigation
 - the complaint relates to serious, high-risk or high-profile issues.

When a previously closed complaint is escalated from stage 1, it is imperative to notify the CET.

Take particular care to identify complaints that might be considered serious, high risk or high profile, as these may require particular action or raise critical issues that need senior management's direct input. The SPSO defines potential high-risk or high-profile complaints as those that may:

- involve a death or terminal illness
 - involve serious service failure, for example major delays in providing, or repeated failures to provide, a service
 - generate significant and ongoing press interest
 - pose a serious risk to Council operations
 - present issues of a highly sensitive nature, for example concerning:
 - immediate homelessness
 - a particularly vulnerable person
 - child protection.

Stage 2: investigation

Not all complaints are suitable for stage 1 resolutions and not all complaints will be satisfactorily resolved after 5 days. Complaints handled at the investigation stage of the complaints handling procedure are typically complex or require a detailed examination before we can state our position. These complaints may already have been considered at stage 1, or they may have been identified from the start as needing immediate investigation.

An investigation aims to establish all the facts relevant to the points made in the complaint and to give the customer a full, objective and proportionate response that represents our final position.

What to do when you receive a complaint for investigation

It is important to be clear from the start of the investigation stage exactly what you are investigating, and to ensure that both the customer and the service understand the scope of the investigation.

It may be helpful to discuss and confirm these points with the customer at the outset, to establish why they are dissatisfied and whether the outcome they are looking for sounds realistic. In discussing the complaint with the customer, consider three key questions:

1. What specifically is the customer's complaint or complaints?
2. What does the customer want to achieve by complaining?
3. Are the customer's expectations realistic and achievable?

It may be that the customer expects more than we can provide. If so, you must make this clear to the customer as soon as possible.

Where possible you should also clarify what additional information you will need to investigate the complaint. The customer may need to provide more evidence to help us reach a decision.

Details of the complaint must be recorded on the CRM system. All details of the complaint must be updated and the case closed when the investigation ends. This is carried out by the CET.

Timelines

The following deadlines are appropriate to cases at the investigation stage:

- complaints must be acknowledged within three working days
- you should provide a full response to the complaint to the CET as soon as possible but not later than 20 working days from the time you received the complaint for investigation.

Extension to the timeline

Not all investigations will be able to meet this deadline. For example, some complaints are so complex that they require careful consideration and detailed investigation beyond the 20-day limit. However, these would be the exception and we must always try to deliver a final response to a complaint within 20 working days.

If there are clear and justifiable reasons for extending the timescale, CET will coordinate with senior management to set time limits on any extended investigation, as long as the customer agrees. CET will keep the customer updated on the reason for the delay and give them a revised timescale for completion. If the customer does not agree to an extension but it is unavoidable and reasonable, then senior management must consider and confirm the extension. The reasons for an extension might include the following:

- Essential accounts or statements, crucial to establishing the circumstances of the case, are needed from employees, customers or others but they cannot help because of long-term sickness or leave.
- You cannot obtain essential information within normal timescales.
- Operations are disrupted by unforeseen or unavoidable operational circumstances, for example industrial action or severe weather conditions.

These are only a few examples, and we will judge the matter in relation to each complaint. However, an extension would be the exception and you must always try to deliver a final response to the complaint within 20 working days.

As with complaints considered at stage 1, the proportion of complaints that exceed the 20-day limit will be evident from reported statistics. These statistics will be reported to the Corporate Management Team on a quarterly basis.

Closing the complaint at the investigation stage

CET will let the customer know the outcome of the investigation, in writing or by their preferred method of contact. Our response to the complaint must address all areas that we are responsible for and explain the reasons for our decision. You must forward a full and detailed response to the CET. CET will record all details on the CRM system and close the case. CET will also make clear to the customer in their response:

- their right to ask SPSO to consider the complaint
- the time limit for doing so, and
- how to contact the SPSO.

Independent external review

Once the investigation stage has been completed the customer has the right to approach the SPSO if they remain dissatisfied.

The SPSO considers complaints from people who remain dissatisfied at the conclusion of our complaints procedure. The SPSO looks at issues such as service failures and maladministration (administrative fault), as well as the way we have handled the complaint.

The SPSO recommends that we use specific wording to inform customers of their right to ask SPSO to consider the complaint. They provide information and guidance for customers at <http://www.spsso.org.uk/leaflets-and-forms>.

Information about the SPSO

The Scottish Public Services Ombudsman (SPSO) is the final stage for complaints about public services in Scotland. This includes complaints about Scottish Councils. If you remain dissatisfied with a Council after its complaints process, you can ask the SPSO to look at your complaint. The SPSO cannot normally look at complaints:

- where you have not gone all the way through the Council's complaints handling procedure
- where more than 12 months have elapsed since you became aware of the matter you want to complain about, or
- Where they have been or are being considered in court.

Governance of the Complaints Handling Procedure

Roles and responsibilities

Overall responsibility and accountability for the management of complaints lies with the Chief Executive and senior management.

Our final position on the complaint must be signed off by an appropriate senior officer and we will confirm that this is our final response. This ensures that our senior management own and are accountable for the decision. It also reassures the customer that their concerns have been taken seriously.

Chief Executive: The Chief Executive provides leadership and direction in ways that guide and enable us to perform effectively across all services. This includes ensuring that there is an effective complaints handling procedure, with a robust investigation process that demonstrates how we learn from the complaints we receive. The Chief Executive may take a personal interest in all or some complaints, or may delegate responsibility for the complaint handling procedure to senior employees. Regular management reports assure the Chief Executive of the quality of complaints performance.

Directors: On the Chief Executive's behalf, directors may be responsible for:

- managing complaints and the way we learn from them
- overseeing the implementation of actions required as a result of a complaint
- investigating complaints
- deputising for the Chief Executive on occasion.

However, directors may decide to delegate some elements of complaints handling (such as investigations and the drafting of response letters) to other senior employees. Where this happens, directors should retain ownership and accountability for the management and reporting of complaints. They may also be responsible for preparing decision letters to customers, so they should be satisfied that the investigation is complete and their response addresses all aspects of the complaint.

Senior Management: may be involved in the operational investigation and management of complaints handling. As senior officers they may be responsible for preparing decision letters to customers, so they should be satisfied that the investigation is complete and their response addresses all aspects of the complaint.

Customer Excellence Team (CET): Service Support Agents will receive notifications on complaints logged on the CRM system by the Customer Service Agents and will allocate them to a relevant officer for investigation. The CET will record complaints received directly by all services. They will update and close all complaints, recording the outcome and ensuring that all relevant documentation is recorded in the CRM. The CET will be responsible for notifying the customer about the outcome of the investigation as determined by the Investigation Officer. All responses must be sent to the CET for review and agreement.

The Customer Excellence Team will also:

- Monitor complaint response times throughout all services and take appropriate action to resolve any protracted complaints.
- Maintain and collate standard information on complaints and pass it at agreed intervals to the Corporate Management Team.
- Identify any issues that may indicate a change in policy/procedure or other management action that may be required.

Investigation Officer: The investigation officer is responsible and accountable for the management of the investigation and will be involved in the investigation and in co-ordinating all aspects of the response and submitting to the CET. This may include preparing a comprehensive written report, including details of any procedural changes in service delivery that could result in wider opportunities for learning across the Council.

All Council employees: A complaint may be made to any Council employee, so all employees must be aware of the complaints handling procedure and know how to handle and record complaints at the frontline stage. They should also be aware of whom to refer a complaint to in case they are not able to personally handle the matter. We encourage all employees to try to resolve complaints early, as close to the point of service delivery as possible, and quickly to prevent escalation.

Council SPSO Liaison Officer: The Liaison Officer will co-ordinate the response for the Chief Executive regarding complaints referred to the Council by the SPSO and act as the formal point of contact. The SPSO Liaison Officer's role includes providing complaints information in an orderly, structured way within requested timescales, providing comments on factual accuracy on our behalf in response to SPSO reports, and confirming and verifying that recommendations have been implemented.

Complaints about senior employees

Complaints about senior employees can be difficult to handle, as there may be a conflict of interest for the employee investigating the complaint. When serious complaints are raised against senior employees, it is particularly important that the investigation is conducted by an individual who is independent of the situation e.g. Director or Chief Executive.

Recording, reporting, learning and publicising

Complaints provide valuable customer feedback. One of the aims of the complaints handling procedure is to identify opportunities to improve services across East Dunbartonshire Council. We must record all complaints in a systematic way so that we can use the complaints data for analysis and management reporting. By recording and using complaints information in this way, we can identify and address the causes of complaints and, where appropriate, identify training opportunities and introduce service improvements.

Recording complaints

To collect suitable data it is essential to record all complaints in line with SPSO minimum requirements, as follows:

- the customer's name and address
- the date the complaint was received
- the nature of the complaint
- how the complaint was received
- the service the complaint refers to
- the date the complaint was closed at the frontline resolution stage (where appropriate)
- the date the complaint was escalated to the investigation stage (where appropriate)
- action taken at the investigation stage (where appropriate)
- the date the complaint was closed at the investigation stage (where appropriate)
- the outcome of the complaint at each stage
- the underlying cause of the complaint and any remedial action taken.

The CRM provides us with a structured system for recording complaints, their outcomes and any resulting action. The CRM system provides a detailed record of services that have failed to satisfy customers.

Reporting of complaints

The reporting system provides us with a tool to analyse complaints and enables us to identify trends / common service failures. Regularly reporting the analysis of complaints information helps to inform management of where services need to improve.

We will publish on a quarterly basis the outcome of complaints and the actions we have taken in response. This will demonstrate the improvements resulting from complaints and shows that complaints can influence our services. It also helps ensure transparency in our complaints handling service and will help to assure our customers that we value their complaints.

Learning from complaints

At the earliest opportunity after the closure of the complaint, the CET will always make sure that the customer and the service involved understand the findings of the investigation and any recommendations made.

Senior management will review the information gathered from complaints regularly and consider whether our services could be improved or internal policies and procedures updated.

As a minimum, we must:

- use complaints data to identify the root cause of complaints
- take action to reduce the risk of recurrence
- record the details of corrective action in the complaints file, and
- systematically review complaints performance reports to improve service delivery.

Where we have identified the need for service improvement:

- the action needed to improve services must be authorised
- an officer (or team) should be designated the 'owner' of the issue, with responsibility for ensuring the action is taken
- a target date must be set for the action to be taken
- the designated individual must follow up to ensure that the action is taken within the agreed timescale
- where appropriate, performance in the service area should be monitored to ensure that the issue has been resolved
- we must ensure that all Council employees learn from complaints.

Publicising complaints performance information

We will also report on our performance in handling complaints annually in line with SPSO requirements. This will include performance statistics showing the volumes and types of complaints and key performance details, for example on the time taken and the stage at which complaints were resolved.

Maintaining confidentiality

Confidentiality is important in complaints handling. It includes maintaining the customer's confidentiality and explaining to them the importance of confidentiality generally. We must always bear in mind legal requirements, for example, data protection legislation, as well as internal policies on confidentiality and the use of customers' information.

Managing unacceptable behaviour

People may act out of character in times of trouble or distress. The circumstances leading to a complaint may result in the customer acting in an unacceptable way. Customers who have a history of challenging or inappropriate behaviour, or have difficulty expressing themselves, may still have a legitimate grievance.

A customer's reasons for complaining may contribute to the way in which they present their complaint. Regardless of this, we must treat all complaints seriously and properly assess them. However, we also recognise that the actions of customers who are angry, demanding or persistent may result in unreasonable demands on time and resources or unacceptable behaviour towards our employees. We will, therefore, apply our policies and procedures to protect employees from unacceptable behaviour such as unreasonable persistence, threats or offensive behaviour from customers. Where we decide to restrict access to a customer under the terms of an unacceptable actions policy, we have a procedure in place to communicate that decision, notify the customer of a right of appeal, and review any decision to restrict contact with us. This will allow the customer to demonstrate a more reasonable approach later.

Supporting the customer

All members of the community have the right to equal access to our complaints handling procedure. Customers who do not have English as a first language may need help with interpretation and translation services, and other customers may have specific needs that we will seek to address to ensure easy access to the complaints handling procedure. This is in line with the Council's Accessible Information Policy.

We must always take into account our commitment and responsibilities to equality. This includes making reasonable adjustments to our service to help the customer where appropriate.

As we are committed to providing high quality services for all, we work to ensure that equality and human rights principles are owned, valued and maintained by everyone within the organisation. To help tackle discrimination and advance equality, we will ask customers to include in the complaints form their equality monitoring information. This information will be treated sensitively in line with our statutory obligations including the Data Protection Act 1998. This information will help us to assess whether there are any other equality issues behind the complaints and concerns raised by our customers.

Several support and advocacy groups are available to support customers in pursuing a complaint and customers should be signposted to these as appropriate.

Time limit for making complaints

This complaint handling procedure sets a time limit of six months from when the customer first knew of the problem, within which time they may ask us to consider the complaint, unless there are special circumstances for considering complaints beyond this time.

We will apply this time limit with discretion. In decision making we will take account of the Scottish Public Services Ombudsman Act 2002 (Section 10(1)), which sets out the time limit within which a member of the public can normally ask the SPSO to consider complaints. The limit is one year from when the person first knew of the problem they are complaining about, unless there are special circumstances for considering complaints beyond this time.

If it is clear that a decision not to investigate a customer's complaint will lead to a request for external review of the matter, we may decide that this satisfies the special circumstances criteria. This will enable us to consider the complaint and try to resolve it.

The customer complains that her Council tax direct debit has been set up wrongly.	Apologise to the customer and resolve the issue by properly updating the direct debit details.
The customer has provided evidence to verify his claim for benefits, but the Benefits Service has not updated his case records with this information.	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Apologise to the customer.• Update the customer's benefit record to record receipt of evidence.• Check that the benefit award is corrected from the appropriate date.
The customer complains that a workman did not attend to carry out a housing repair as we had agreed.	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Speak to the workman, the service or the service manager to explain the customer's complaint and to agree how to resolve the issue, for example by arranging a new time and date to do the repair.• Explain the reasons for the failed appointment and apologise to the customer.
The customer complains that the quality of a repair done by us or our contractor is not satisfactory.	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Ask the service department to examine the repair to assess whether or not it is acceptable.• If appropriate, agree that the service department should do more work to resolve the matter.• Explain and apologise to the customer.• Obtain a report from the service or contractor to confirm that the repair is now complete.• Feedback the lessons learned from the complaint into a service improvement plan.
The customer complains that a road is not on our winter gritting route so has not been gritted.	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Find out which roads are on our agreed gritting routes, and explain this route to the customer.• Use the customer's concerns to inform our future approach to gritting roads.

Complaint	Possible actions to achieve resolution
The customer complains that his home carer turned up late and was smoking.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Contact the care service to discuss the matter with a service manager. • The care service should check the timetable for visits and discuss with the home carer the complaint about smoking. The care service should let you know the outcome. • You in turn contact the customer to explain the policy, confirm the timing of visits (for example between 08:00 and 12 noon) and, where appropriate, apologise for the inconvenience.
The customer complains that a night-working refuse collector woke her up by making excessive noise.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Explain our policy on refuse collection, in particular the approach to night working. • Tell the customer that you will pass on details of the complaint to the service to highlight the noise issue and ask the service to do what they can to control noise. • Apologise to the customer for the inconvenience.
The customer expresses dissatisfaction in line with the definition of a complaint, but says she does not want to complain – just wants to tell us about the matter.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Tell the customer that we value complaints because they help to improve services. Encourage them to submit the complaint. • In terms of improving service delivery and learning from mistakes, it is important that customer feedback, such as this, is recorded, evaluated and acted upon. Therefore, if the customer still insists that they do not want to complain, record the matter as an anonymous complaint. This will avoid breaching the complaints handling procedure. Reassure the customer that they will not be contacted again about the matter.

Appendix 2 - What is not a complaint

A concern may not necessarily be a complaint. For example, a customer might make a routine first-time request for a service. This is not a complaint, but the issue may escalate into a complaint if it is not handled effectively and the customer has to keep on asking for service.

A customer may also be concerned about various Council decisions. These decisions may have their own specific review or appeal procedures, and, where appropriate, customers must be directed to the relevant procedure. The following paragraphs provide examples of the types of issues or concerns that must not be handled through the complaints handling procedure. This is not a full list, and you should decide the best route for resolution based on the individual case.

Example 1: Planning

Customers may express dissatisfaction after the refusal of planning or other related permissions. An example would be dissatisfaction with a condition of consent or an enforcement action.

Planning applicants, or their agent, have the right to appeal to Scottish Ministers on planning or related matters determined by Committee or decided under delegated powers. Appeals are usually, but not always, decided by a Reporter from the Directorate of Planning and Environmental Appeals and can be considered on the basis of written submissions or by a hearing or public inquiry. The Reporter appointed to consider the appeal will manage the whole process and consider how to gather enough information to make a decision.

Customers who are dissatisfied with one of our planning decisions, and who have a right to appeal to Scottish Ministers, should be directed to this service. However, some complaints about planning matters are from third parties such as neighbours. These customers do not have the right of appeal to Scottish Ministers. These complaints should, therefore, be considered through the CHP.

Example 2: Benefits

A customer may be dissatisfied or disagree with a decision about their housing or council tax benefit claim. This is not a complaint. The customer may ask us to review the decision. If they remain dissatisfied at the outcome of the review or reconsideration of their claim, they may also appeal against our decision to an independent appeal tribunal. Where they want to do so, you should direct them appropriately.

Example 3: Claims for compensation

A customer may seek compensation from us if they consider us liable. This includes issues such as personal injury or loss of or damage to property. Claims for compensation are not complaints, so you must not handle them through the complaints handling procedure. You should be clear, however, that where a customer wants to complain about the matter leading to their request for compensation, for example workmen damaging their home, or the condition of a public road causing damage to a motor vehicle, you may consider that matter as a complaint, but deal with the request for compensation separately. You may decide to suspend complaint action pending the outcome of the claim for compensation. If you do this, you must notify the customer and explain that the complaint will be fully considered when the compensation claim has been resolved.

If you receive a compensation claim, you should explain to the customer the process for seeking resolution in line with our policy on these claims. Claims for compensation are dealt with by the Council's insurers.

The Council can still make ex-gratia 'time and trouble' payments for inconvenience suffered by customers, in line with our policy on such matters. This is distinct from compensation claims.

Example 4: Licence decisions

We are responsible for issuing various licences, including public entertainment, HMO (houses in multiple occupation), liquor and taxi licences. These have their own mechanisms for seeking legal redress. Customers who are dissatisfied with these decisions will have to pursue this through the correct procedure for the type of licence they want.

Example 5: School exclusions and placing requests

Decisions on appeals against a pupil's exclusion from school or a refusal of a school placing request are made by Committee. Once the Committee has ruled, the customer cannot then use the complaints process to continue their case.

Example 6: School exam results

Schools have devolved authority to offer examinations on the awarding body's behalf. In most cases this will be the SQA. If a customer is dissatisfied with the result of an exam, the school should refer it to the awarding body.

Remember that although there may be an alternative form of redress for the customer as detailed above, you must consider carefully whether or not a customer's representations should be managed within the complaints handling procedure. Dissatisfaction with certain Council decisions may simply require an explanation and directing to the correct route for resolution. If, however, a customer says they are dissatisfied with the administrative process we have followed in reaching a decision, you may consider that dissatisfaction through the complaints handling procedure. An example may be a complaint from a customer who is dissatisfied with a decision and alleges that we failed to follow or apply the appropriate guidance in reaching that decision.

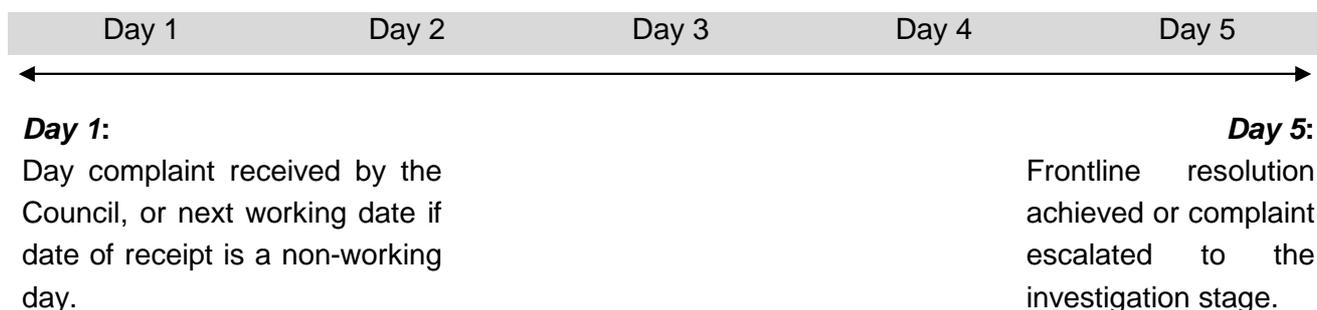

Appendix 3 - Timelines

General

References to timelines throughout the complaints handling procedure relate to working days. When measuring performance against the required timelines, we do not count non-working days, for example weekends, public holidays and days of industrial action where our service has been interrupted.

Timelines at frontline resolution

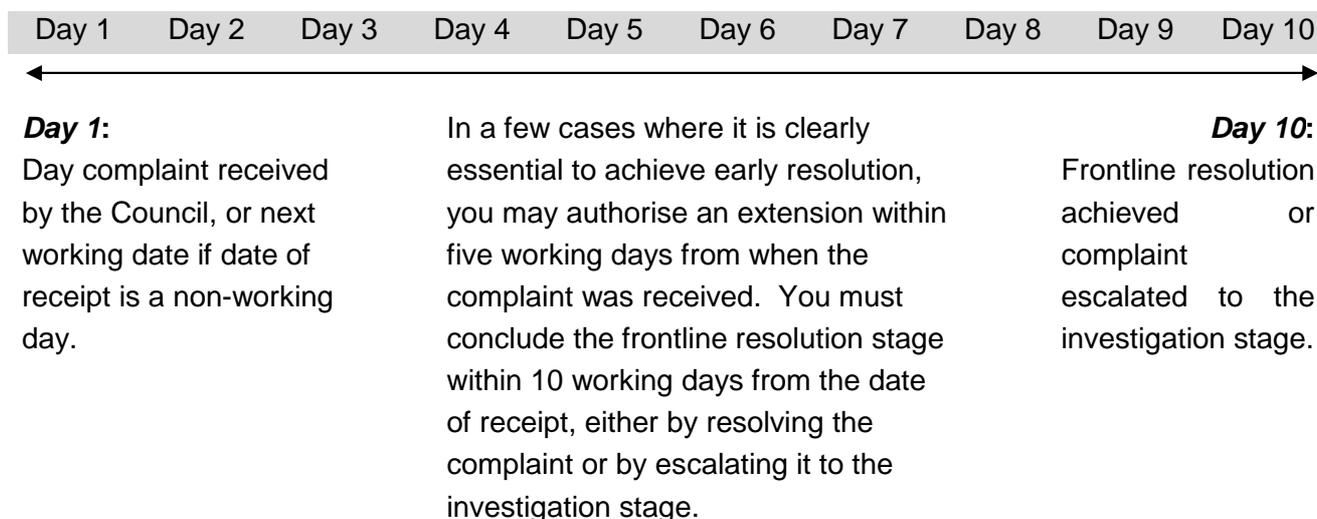

You must aim to achieve frontline resolution within five working days. The day you receive the complaint is day 1. Where you receive it on a non-working day, for example at the weekend or on a public holiday, day 1 will be the next working day.

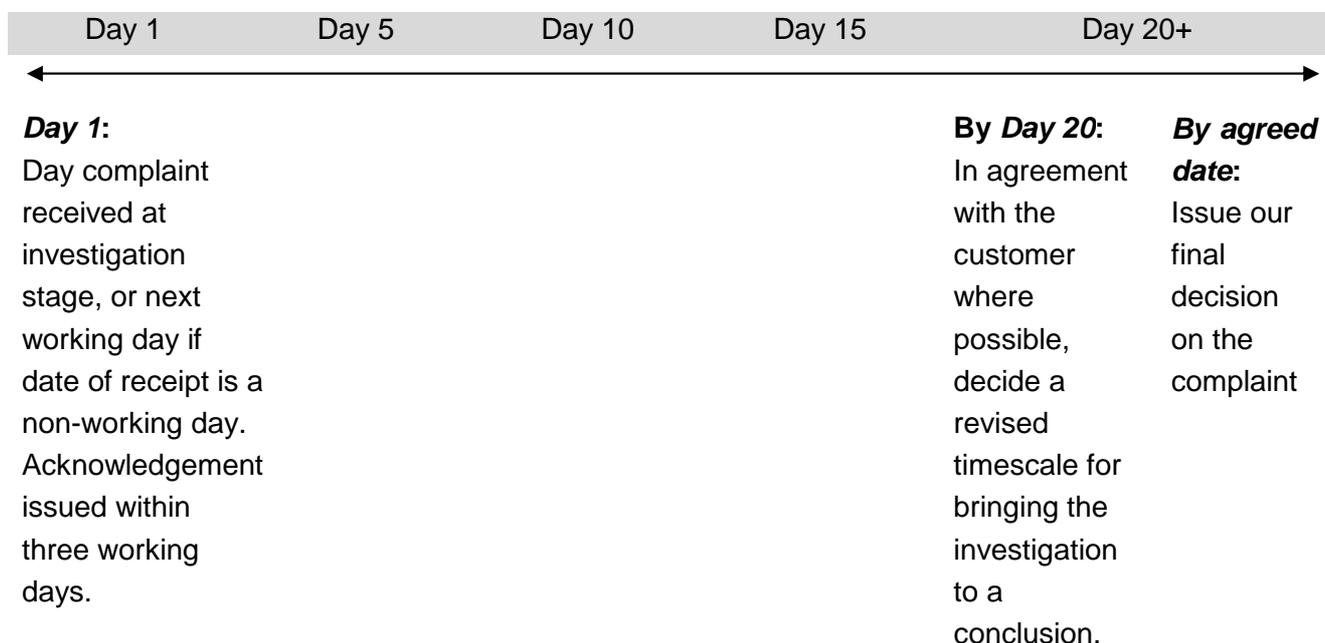

The date of receipt will be determined by the Council's usual arrangements for receiving and dating of mail or when an email or telephone or face to face complaint is received and recorded on the CRM system.

Extension to the five-day timeline

If you have extended the timeline at the frontline resolution stage in line with the procedure, the revised timetable for the response must take no longer than 10 working days from the date of receiving the complaint.

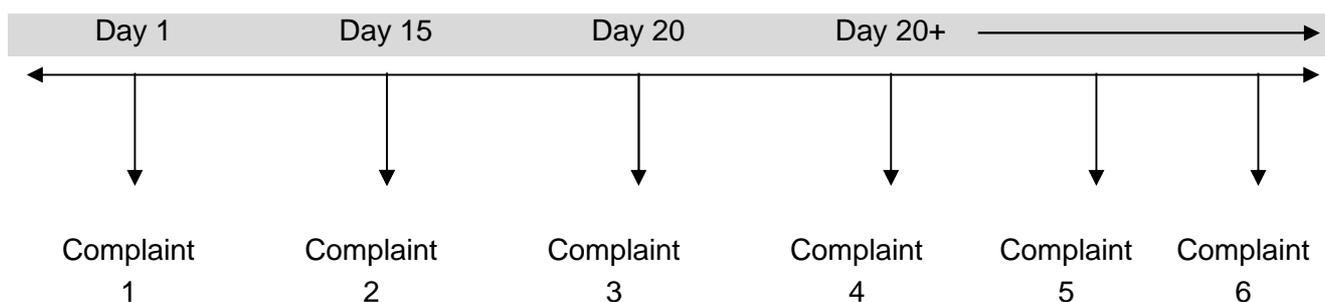

Exceptionally you may need longer than the 20-day limit for a full response. If so, you must explain the reasons to the CET, and agree with them a revised timescale.

Timeline examples

The following illustration provides examples of the point at which we conclude our consideration of a complaint. It is intended to show the different stages and times at which a complaint may be resolved.

The circumstances of each complaint are explained below:

Complaint 1

Complaint 1 is a straightforward issue that may be resolved by an on-the-spot explanation and, where appropriate, an apology. Such a complaint can be resolved on day 1.

Complaint 2

Complaint 2 is also a straightforward matter requiring little or no investigation. In this example, resolution is reached at day three of stage 1.

Complaint 3

Complaint 3 refers to a complaint that we considered appropriate for stage 1 resolution. We did not resolve it in the required timeline of five working days. However, we authorised an extension on a clear and demonstrable expectation that the complaint would be satisfactorily resolved within a further five days. We resolved the complaint at stage 1, resolution in a total of eight days.

Complaint 4

Complaint 4 was suitably complex or serious enough to pass to the investigation stage from the outset. We did not go through the stage 1 process; rather we investigated the case immediately. We issued a final decision to the customer within the 20-day limit.

Complaint 5

We considered complaint 5 at stage 1, where an extension of five days was authorised. At the end of the stage 1 the customer was still dissatisfied. At their request, we conducted an investigation and issued our final response within 20 working days. Although the end-to-end timeline was 30 working days we still met the combined time targets for frontline resolution and investigation.

Complaint 6

Complaint 6 was considered at both stage 1 and stage 2, the investigation stage. We did not complete the investigation within the 20-day limit, so we agreed a revised timescale with the customer for concluding the investigation beyond the 20-day limit.
